

The Relocation Blues

First we met at Denny's,
where we could order off the menu
But otherwise? Not a really good venue.

Now here we are, at Hacker DoJo
Where next year? We just don't know.

This is not an ideal place,
But it's nice to see a familiar face.

As we gather together 'most every week
With like-minded people we seek.

Knowing they're on our wave length
In itself gives us strength.

So though our future is uncertain
We certainly won't pull the curtain

On all this group means to us still.
We've got the Relocation Blues, but also have the will

To push on through our current hard times
End of poem -- I'm out of rhymes.
